Symposium for Teachers • October 17, 1986

In 1984 Drew University launched the Symposium for Teachers program. Utilizing Drew faculty, this program aims at providing enrichment in a variety of disciplines to primary and secondary school teachers. While participating in these day-long programs, teachers interact with other teachers and with Drew faculty on topics relevant to the school curriculum. These symposia offer teachers intellectual stimulation, varied and up-to-date materials for classroom use, and an opportunity for sharing ideas and information.

Integrating a Gender Perspective into the Curriculum is the topic of the Fall 1986 Symposium. In the past five years, integrating a gender perspective into the curriculum has become a priority of curriculum revision in secondary schools, colleges and universities. The purpose of this symposium is to share with New Jersey teachers the results of a two-year gender integration project at Drew University. The symposium will bring together Drew faculty from different disciplines to share with teachers their experience in revising their own courses and to discuss the new scholarship on women and gender in their respective disciplines. The symposium will close with a practical session intended to help teachers facilitate the process of integrating a gender perspective into their own school's curriculum.

To make this workshop as useful as possible for each individual school as a whole, we suggest that schools send teams of two or three teachers from different disciplines who can work together after the workshop to share information with their colleagues.

8:30–9:00 Registration and Coffee

9:00 Opening Remarks and Welcome
Paolo Cucchi
Dean of the College of Liberal Arts

Overview of Integration Theory and Projects
Description of the Day
Wendy Kolmar
Women's Studies Project Coordinator

9:30 Faculty Panel
The Experience of Course Revision
Sara Henry (History of Art), Bill Stroker (History of Religion), Bill Messmer (Political Science), Joan Weimer (English)

10:15–10:30 Coffee Break

10:30–11:30 Syllabus Workshops with Faculty

11:45–1:15 Lunch
Book Display

1:15–2:15 New Perspectives on Women in—

American History Delight Dodyk	Biology Joy Phillips	Sociology Howard Elterman
English Literature Nadine Ollman	Anthropology Leedom Lefferts	Psychology Marianne O'Hare
American Literature Geraldine Smith

2:15–3:15 New perspectives on Women in—
(Workshops Repeated)

1:15–3:15 Special Session: New Perspectives on Teaching and Research about Women in the Foreign Languages Panel Presentation and Discussion

Spanish—Ada Ortuzar Young
German—John Schabacker
French—Ilona Coombs
Pedagogy—Elfriede Smith

3:15–3:30 Afternoon Break
Founders Room
Book Display

3:30–4:30 Where Do We Go From Here?
Workshop on Facilitating Integration in Your Own School

REGISTRATION—Integrating a Gender Perspective into the Curriculum

Mail to:
Symposium Registration

Drew University

Founded in 1866, Drew University is an independent, four-year university with an enrollment of 2,200 students in a College of Liberal Arts, a Graduate School, and a Theological School. Students enroll from some 42 states and the District of Columbia as well as from 50 countries. Located in Madison, N.J. some 30 miles west of New York City and three miles east of historic Morristown, Drew is the home to the New Jersey Museum of Archaeology, the Colonial Symphony, the Arts Council of the Morris Area, and the New Jersey Shakespeare Festival.

Directions to Drew

Via Garden State Parkway:
Drive north on Garden State Parkway to Union, New Jersey, Toll Plaza. Immediately after toll, take right exit, following Rt. 24 signs; Rt. 24 West goes to Drew (to enter Rt. 24 West, at exit you must follow Rt. 24 signs, drive east on Rt. 24 for ½ mile to Hillside exit turnaround, which is well marked for Rt. 24 West). Once on Rt. 24 West, drive some 11 miles through Madison center to Drew on your left.

Via I-80:
Follow I-80 East into New Jersey to I-287 South (Morristown/Boonton). Drive south (Morristown) on I-287 to Exit 31 (Madison Ave./Rt. 24). Turn left off of exit ramp onto Rt. 24 East and drive three miles to Madison where Drew is on your right.

Via I-78:
Follow I-78 East into New Jersey to I-287 North. Drive north on I-287 to Exit 31 (Madison Ave./Rt. 24). Follow carefully signs on exit ramp to Rt. 24 East and drive three miles to Madison where Drew is on your right.

Via New Jersey Turnpike:
Follow New Jersey Turnpike North to Exit 10 (New Brunswick/I-287). Take I-287 North to Exit 31 (Madison Ave./Rt. 24). Follow carefully signs on exit ramp to Rt. 24 East and drive three miles to Madison where Drew is on your right.

Early Registration Recommended. Participation will be limited.

If you have any questions, please contact: Office of the Associate Dean, 201-377-3000, ext. 323

Cost: The registration fee is $55 for individuals and for the first teacher in a team, $50 for each additional team member. Registration includes lunch, morning and afternoon refreshments, and resource packet. Registration may be paid by personal check or school purchase order.

Integrating a Gender Perspective into the Curriculum:

A SYMPOSIUM FOR TEACHERS

October 17, 1986

DREW UNIVERSITY

College of Liberal Arts